River and Harbor Improvements in Oregon

WASHINGTON, Jan 6 — Senator Slater to day introduced bills proposing appropriations for river and harbor improvements in Oregon as follows. For the Columbia river canal at the Cascades $300 000; Coos bay, $60 000; Coquille river $50 000, Yaquina bay —— thousand dollars

Also, bills authorizing the Astoria and Winnemucca railroad company to construct bridges across Young's bay and Lewis and Clark's rivers, and appropriating $6 900 to pay for losses of private property of officers and enlisted men and laundresses of the 2d regiment, artillery by the wreck of the government transport Torrent at Cook's inlet, Alaska, in 1868

English Criticism of Parnell's Scheme

NEW YORK Jan 6 — The Telegram has a five column letter by cable from Earl Dunraven on Parnell and his mission, from which the following extracts are taken Of all the quack cures for hard times the 'patent Parnell pill' is the simplest and most deleterious in its consequences It consists of the maxim 'When hard up, don't pay your debts Pay your rent when it's convenient to do so if it's inconvenient to pay it do not,' Unite and you cannot be compelled to pay, neither can you be turned out ' Robbery organized on such a scheme would, of course be hard to deal with, and there would be some sense in it if Irish tenant farmers were devoid of all moral feelings But they are not. It is obvious that if tenant farmers paid no rent they would be better off for a little time, in the same way that they would be better off if they did not pay for their clothes and the provisions they purchase. The proposals of the Parnellites are peculiar They say farmers cannot pay their rent in bad times. As a remedy they propose that the tenants should pay rent, and a large sum in addition, to the government, for a term of thirty-five years Are they certain that there will not come bad harvests in that period? Do they think the government would make payments or trouble their heads about the condition of their tenants? The Parnellites recommend the people that which is illegal, and bid them to keep within the limits of the law. They urge them to keep possession of the property, money or land belonging to others, and excite them to expressions of sentiments which imply a determination to cheat one class of creditors rather than pay debts due them, and apparently fail to see that they are recommending theft and condoning murder Their claim to have the welfare of the Irish people at heart, and endeavor to prevent them from bettering their condition by emigration If a company can only be formed successfully in large holdings, you cannot alter circumstances by changing the tenure of land. Emigration is powerless to deal with immediate need, and relief must be obtained from other sources The government appears to have wisely decided against granting state aid to Ireland at present State interference in such matters is usually injudicious. It is essential that private charities should be carefully administered, and the money judiciously employed. If large sums are subscribed, the money, after the present pressing necessities of the country have been relieved, can be spent with certainty of profit in one way, and that is by helping and encouraging emigration An experiment in the way of 'peasant proprietorship' might be tried. It is hard to theorize in such matters In very exceptional cases it might prove a success—an unusually prudent man might succeed in getting and keeping his freehold, and where a farm contained large proportions of unimproved but improvable land, its yield might keep pace for a time with the increasing number of human beings to be supported by it. I fear, however, that the experiment would invariably prove a lamentable failure Ireland ought to be fairly prosperous But such period of agitation however, by disturbing men's minds, by inducing them to indulge in foolish dreams, by reducing values and destroying credit, by alienating English capital and producing in the English mind a feeling of disgust in everything Irish—sets the country back years and years. Feeling this strongly as I do, and seeing that Mr Parnell proposes to devote the funds he may obtain in America to foment and keep up a state of things fatal to the country, I do most sincerely hope that his success may be small No man would more heartily wish success to his mission than I, were this money to be applied in any practical manner that could benefit the people"

The earl concludes by saying that he looks in vain through all the speeches of Parnell and his adherents for one little glimmer of practical common sense

An Invitation to Parnell.

OMAHA, Jan 6 — An invitation has been sent to Parnell to make Omaha a visit on his way to California In case he accepts he will be given a big reception by Irish citizens who meet to morrow to make preliminary arrangements.

In its appeal to the governor the committee asking for the removal of arms from the state house says Never before in our history has an armed man been seen within the walls of that building, devoted by our fathers to order law and peace It is a great public scandal that at the very portals of a building thus consecrated armed sentinels should be pacing, and that passwords inspections and signals are requisite to admission within its walls Free laws cannot be enacted under the presence of armed forces and it is cruel mockery to ask the legislature of Maine to assemble with such surroundings

EXCITEMENT AT THE CAPITAL

To-day has been a day of excitements rumors and discomforts and there are very few of all the crowd here who know definitely what the results of all the caucusing and committee work will be The whole state has emptied its politicians into this little city and as the weather has been disagreeable enough to keep all indoors who are not obliged to go out the lobbies of the Augusta house on Capitol hill which is the center of interest have been crowded all day long Republicans are in the large majority and all the leading men of the party are in the city Those who are arranging a programme have been busy enough It is understood that the arms will be removed from the state house to-night Gov Chamberlain has called upon the superintendent of state buildings to report to him forthwith the number of men employed as a guard in the state house by whose order they were enlisted, for what purpose and out of what fund they are to be paid They are already discharged and to-morrow the state house will be guarded only by civilian police

They have held three caucuses to day and steadily profess their ability to organize both houses to-morrow. So far as the senate is concerned, this is an undisputed fact, but they cannot rally a quorum in the house, and it is the purpose of the republicans to hold the advantage gained by the break in the quorum It is positively known that four fusionists have refused to act in the organization viz Voter, Sprani, Snow and Harriman Swan, of Minot is said to have renewed his allegiance to the fusionists This will leave 74 fusionists, two less than a quorum, and as the republicans will absent themselves this will render the transaction of business impossible It is hinted that the fusionists will proceed to business with the number they may have, but this is not generally believed The republicans had a caucus to night. Every member in the city being present, whether counted in or counted out and the absent ones will reach here to-morrow There was great enthusiasm and harmony in the line of action to be pursued

The republicans have nominated Joseph A Locke of Cumberland for president of the senate and George C Weeks of Augusta for speaker of the house.

AN ODIOUS ORDER.

The order for issuing tickets for admission to the state house to morrow proved extremely offensive and has been rescinded. Care will be taken however to prevent crowding up so that business can be transacted The contest to morrow will be of great interest although nothing like an outbreak is contemplated The fusionists are very reticent about their plan of operations their effort being to conceal it. They avow that they will not show their hand to the enemy

A CHARGE OF BRIBERY

Thomas B Swan has made a written statement to the effect that he was paid $1000 by an agent of the republicans, on consideration that he would not be present at the opening of the legislature He says that the agent whose name he suppresses stated that the republicans had got three or four members to remain away from the house of representatives so as to prevent the fusionists from obtaining a quorum

A REPORT NOT CREDITED

NEW YORK, Jan 6 — The news from Maine in regard to the fraud by republicans is received with distrust It is argued that if any money was paid by the republicans the fusionists would willingly publish the name of the man who paid it On the contrary it would be an easy matter for the fusionists to advance money make a charge of corruption and thus change the public sentiment to such a degree as to enable them to organize the legislature

THE MORMON ALLIES

A PRIVATE LETTER FROM SALT LAKE WHICH CONTAINS MUCH OF INTEREST

[From the Denver Tribune]

The following extracts taken from a letter received by a lady of this city have been placed at the disposal of the Tribune and are published as being outside evidence tending to corroborate the suspicions of Mormon instigation in the recent Indian outbreak which this paper has published in its special dispatches This letter is dated Salt Lake City Utah November 27 1879 and after some personal and private topics reads as follows Mrs —— you believe in the efficacy of prayer—then pray for the women of Utah for they need our prayers I have boarded with one bishop who had seven wives and forty two children another had four wives who presented him with four children within forty eight hours At this writing I am boarding with an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as they style themselves I have been in Brigham Young's harem have seen and conversed with six of his widows have seen a man married to a mother and her daughter living with them both in the same house have seen three sisters living with one man and have had a splendid opportunity of studying polygamy and the Mormons and now I have this to say Of all the forms of religion Mormonism is the most horrible the most disgusting and the most degrading The women of Utah deserve more pity than the slaves of the south did sixteen years ago Polygamy is a disgrace to the United States and they will not abandon it let the government say and do what it may They are the sworn enemies of the union [illegible] of the Indians who they believe will be the instrument in the hands of God to destroy the proud Gentile race They are building a temple here in Salt Lake at a cost of $10 000 000 for Jesus Christ to dwell in when He comes to rule the world

I see the D[illegible]ver [illegible] the Mormons assisted the Indians in the outbreak and the Gentiles here are of the same opinion [illegible] Salt Lake [illegible] writing so much about a subject that probably does not interest you

WASHINGTON LETTER

[illegible]

WASHINGTON D C Dec [illegible]

[illegible] President Hayes [illegible] civil service reform [illegible] investigations have assented to it [illegible] pledged to [illegible] written down [illegible]

President Hayes [illegible] he would not look back [illegible] would [illegible] of the lessons of 1880 [illegible] no success would be possible to any party whose leaders [illegible] could be made a republican victory [illegible] may have been conspicuous in this they have made but a sorry figure Had he remembered his own aphorism 'He serves his party best who serves his country best' he would have put that party far on the road to a national triumph and made any of its ambitious men opposed to this reform impossible candidates for the presidency Then Cornell would have sunk 5000 votes lower than he did and Conkling and in New York the present chief peril of that party would have been shorn of most of its power

But all honor should be awarded to Hayes the most mentally courageous president this nation has ever had whose administration will be regarded by the future as not only one of the cleanest but one of the most brilliant in our history Grant started out in his presidential career intending really to be president but his pluck failed him when called upon to face a senate more than two thirds republican He could overcome his foes but allowed his party friends to bind him and soon settled down as an unresisting convert to the belief that this is a republic governed by a senate and history will be compelled to admit that he did nothing to save his country from the voracity of official vampires Hayes failing leaned more to virtue's side and had in it none of the element of cowardice He quailed not before a hostile senate and could stand alone when his party supporters had dwindled down to a corporal's guard but fearing that if he lived up to his own grand maxim that republicanism representing to him the best hopes of the country and of mankind would be weakened he lowered his standard and consented to do evil that good might come'

The stone that was rejected by the builders may become the head of the corner and the battle of 1880 may be won or lost around the banner with this strange device — 'Civil Service Reform Unless the south through unimaginable folly, shall so reawaken the sentiment of nationalism that all patriots shall resolve to postpone the consideration of other questions until it is made indisputably certain that we have a nation to reform, no one known to be hostile to that banner can receive the suffrages of the independents and liberals, without which success will be impossible They may not expect to elect an avowed champion of this reform but they have fully resolved that no enemy thereof shall be elevated to the presidency by their votes

No one who has carefully looked into the matter can doubt but that competitive examinations have given to the government a better class of clerks In another decade the official hacks will have passed away from the departments, and the full benefit of the system, if not overturned by democratic supremacy, will then be apparent. This system is not the best possible way of choosing officials, but it is certainly the best practicable way Senator A—— who knows me through and through, is a better judge of my capacity than any board of examiners after their most thorough examination But who will guarantee that Senator A—— will recommend none but those whom he knows to be efficient? And if he be in knowledge and integrity the ideal senator grant him any power over appointments and how can you deny the same to his unworthy successor?

This reform will always limp and halt unless by law members of congress are excluded from having anything whatever to do with the selection of official subordinates Then they, denied this power, will see to it that other officers of the government are not allowed to lay their hands upon the ark If this feature can be wrought into the system, and I believe it can, it will be a grand success and the ever-increasing army of office-holders will prove a bulwark instead of a peril to the nation So long as the lawmakers are consulted about the appointments, so long will presidents and secretaries be measurably compelled to allow them to select their subordinates, and official patronage will continue to cancel political debts If I want an office I would simply desire that members of congress keep their hands off but as they do not I am a powerless suppliant at the feet of authority unless I have "influence" One would think that members would be very glad to be relieved of the importunities of office seekers It is true that the burden is hard to be borne but the consciousness of power—who will readily give that up? Every one believes that 'uneasy lies the head that wears a crown' yet crowns do not go a-begging I asked a venerable senator who had after a third of a century, been rotated out of public life, if he was not very glad to be relieved of the burdens and perplexities of office to which he gave a reluctant affirmative but significantly added 'no man likes to give up power And especially is this true of the strong men and so your Grants aspire for third terms And so you senators and representatives will never inaugurate this reform They will be sufficiently wise when they yield to the pressure from without

Such terms as the 'd—— Dutch thump' 'visionary philosopher' and 'impracticable theorist' have been applied to Carl Schurz but to him more than to any other man is civil service reform indebted for its partial triumph When the candidacy of Cornell brought to that reform its crucial hour, faithful among the faithless was only he Possibly his republicanism is more the outgrowth of its philosophy and less a matter of sentiment than that of the president but he clung to his cause with a logical fidelity that saved it from a sad reverse No man better than he knows how far even in his own department the importunities of congressmen and the unpreparedness of the public mind have prevented him from realizing his ideal Some have asserted that his system of examinations has only resulted in the selection of the best among those who have that mysterious something—influence If he had progressed no farther than that much would have been the gain From my own individual experience I know he has advanced beyond that point I know a young man, without a shadow of influence who was examined for a position By some oversight but half of his examination papers were canvassed Of course he fell below the mark When convinced of the mistake the department had him re-examined and his average was sufficiently high to have put him among the elect It was then too late to bestow upon him one of the original prizes but a place in every way equally desirable was immediately found for him

Politicians do not understand how popular this reform is with the masses who are not concerned about office [illegible] It should be borne in mind that the [illegible] even those who [illegible] have never [illegible] hope of office are [illegible] and all their line of fair play [illegible] them on the side [illegible] give official positions to men of merit regardless of their devotion to any party [illegible] member of congress A clerk in Schurz's department can feel a manly independence [illegible] can withhold his aid to his party without any fear of imperilling his position

More objectionable even than bestowing the public patronage upon their partisan adherents is the giving of office to the sons of senators and representatives During the republican control of the senate, a senator lost caste by putting his son upon the pay roll [illegible] Christianity was known to be poor but that fact did not excuse him in the estimation of his associates for making his son the clerk of his committee And tended notwithstanding his intellect and high character to place him upon a level with Paterson of South Carolina who was guilty of the same indecorum In less than a year from assuming the reins of power the democratic senators have sheltered their sons in the snug positions of clerks and messengers to say nothing [illegible] numbers [illegible] they be [illegible] verbatim

INDIAN AFFAIRS

A bill has been [illegible] all the Indians of Washington territory west of the Cascades for their removal [illegible] consolidation with the Indians on the Neah bay and Puyallup reservations [illegible] consolidation [illegible] with [illegible] Yakima reservation as they may elect and the consolidation of the Siletz and other Indians on the coast of Oregon with [illegible] the Grand Ronde reservation The abandoned reservations are to be divided into 40 acre lots, to be sold at public sale in tracts not exceeding 160 acres to any one person through the respective land offices at not less than their appraised value which shall not be lower than $1 25 per acre No restriction as to the quantity of other land that any one person can buy is contained in the bill All lands remaining unsold will be subject to private entry All Indians of these reservations on the abandonment of their tribal relations shall be entitled to select 160 acres each from the lands vacated by their respective tribes said lands being entirely unalienable for 25 years The proceeds of the sale of the lands after the deduction of all expenses of survey and appraisal shall be invested in United States security interest thereon to be applied to the Indians relinquishing the same The bill further appropriates to be taken from the proceeds of the vacated lands $170 000 for the removal of the Indians of Oregon and Washington The Indians on the Lemhi reservation in Idaho are to be consolidated with the Fort Hall Indians and $[illegible]000 are set apart for this purpose also provides for negotiations with the Colville and other Indians of northeastern Washington for the cession of their lands and their consolidation upon a diminished reservation within or adjacent to the Colville reservation, and for this purpose $10 000 are set aside

Mr Abnerbmead of Baker City will soon have his loyalty rehabilitated as a bill to remove his political disabilities has been presented

Mr Slater introduced a bill of considerable importance to the canners of your section The law now allows to exporters a certain drawback on cans wholly manufactured of imported material, but its practical working as heretofore interpreted has shut out your exporters from its benefits because while they use imported tin in the manufacture of their cans, they use American solder so as to cans are not wholly made of imported material The senator's bill gives them the benefit of the drawback where the imported material used shall equal 70 per cent of the total value of the cans irrespective of the contents. The simple object is to enable them to get their tin at lower rates, which seeing as there are no tin mines in this country the most earnest protectionists cannot object to

In my last I forgot to mention that the engineers recommend an appropriation of $40,000 for the Upper Willamette river

ANCIENT BANKING

CHECKS RECEIPTS AND USURY IN BABYLON, ATHENS AND ROME

[London Standard]

Mr F G Hilton Price F G S read a paper at the opening meeting of the Institute of Bankers, entitled Notes on Ancient Bankers and Goldsmiths to the Close of the Seventeenth Century Mr Price who is the author of The Handbook of London Bankers' gave a large number of very interesting facts on the subject referring in the opening part of his paper to the little that is known of the operations of banking or trade of any equivalent character, among the Chinese and Hindoos as far back as 2250 B C Although there were no actual records of banking among the ancient Egyptians, yet it appeared certain that that class of traders existed as was inferred from various uses made of precious metals Some of the monetary transactions mentioned in the Bible some 2000 years B C were also referred to The author dwelt on the recent discoveries made in Assyria by the late George Smith of the British Museum and gave translations of tablets discovered by that gentleman, especially in connection with the tablets of checks receipts and other records of a great firm of the name of Egibi who flourished in 597 B C These tablets are classified in order A remarkable fact in connection with the tablets was that each bore the day of the month, date and regnal year of the monarch in whose reign the transactions were made. Among the tablets was also a bank almanac of the firm containing the complete calendar of the Babylonian year It appeared from this disclosure that the usurious rate of cent per cent was sometimes charged on loans The speaker then passed on to notice the monetary transactions of the Greeks, among whom especially in Athens there were plenty of money dealers Bills of exchange were in these easy times made use of, and could be transmitted from place to place Although much was known of the Roman practice there was no information whether the check —the tributis or perscriptum—was transferable to any one else by the person who received it or whether it was only payable to the drawee Recent discoveries at Pompeii in the house of a Roman banker had resulted in unearthing the actual tablets used in his banking business, and they represented receipts for payment and the registration of payments made to the public exchequer After the Norman conquest the Jews were brought to England by William I, and introduced bills of exchange and the practice of lending money at interest upon security of landed property The next point noticed was the rise and progress of the goldsmiths chiefly in London Previous to the fire goldsmiths lived in Chepe After the fire they removed to Lombard street About the time of Charles I, the goldsmiths had superfluous bullion in the tower of London for safe keeping but this led to the King seizing the whole amounting to £200 000 and it was some time before the sum was repaid Mr Price brought down the list of goldsmiths to the year 1690 introducing the names of Messrs Blanchard & Child at Ye Marygold now Messrs Child & Co Messrs Duncomb & Kent at Ye Grasshopper now Messrs Martin & Co James Hoare of Ye Golden Bottle now Messrs Hoare Fleet street and Humphrey Stocks Ye Black Horse now Messrs Barnett Hoare & Co The bank of England established in 1694, became a serious rival to the goldsmiths and bankers

Oregon and Washington Territory

[From the Seattle Intelligencer]

Oregon is very nearly one third greater in area than Washington territory and in 1870 had just four times as many people—[illegible],000 to 24 000 What the population of the Webfoot state now is cannot be positively stated but it [illegible] four times greater than ours it must be fully 260,000 to day The most devoted Oregonian however does not claim more than 160,000 and an accurate census return will probably be much smaller than even that figure Our territorial [illegible] nearly or quite one half as many people as they

A statement is going the rounds of the press to the effect that Texas has a baby born without brains It is argued that it would be a safe investment to wager that in twenty five years the Lone Star state will have a citizen capable of representing the greenback party in congress

Little stir in social circles No parties at present although in a few weeks the Terpsichorean Club will give a masquerade party Several elegant suits have been ordered

The Blue Ribbon Club had a pleasant meeting last night Father Harmon made some happy interesting speeches the choir sang some very pretty choruses, and Miss Grace Crandall sang a solo with fine effect and was loudly applauded The Temperance Mirror was good as usual and well read Pledge signers increase every week

A GOOD FARMING COUNTRY

The lower end of Klickitat prairie situated about 10 miles north of here and 14 from Goldendale and 12 miles from Klickitat landing, is from what I can learn a good locality for settlement It is a timbered and well watered section and a fine wheat growing region some say good as any in this vicinity This land however is fast filling up and large portions are taken There are something like fifty settlers in the locality among whom I note the names of the following persons occupants or owners of land Mr W P Watson and sons Mr Rathbrick Mr Titman and son P Smith A J Smithson and brother and Mr Buchanan from Albany The latter I am told has already fenced plowed and sowed about 160 acres of land with wheat Smithson Brothers expect to put in 320 acres this spring in wheat Many others will put in spring crops It is claimed that the land is so situated that 10 000 or 15,000 acres can be enclosed by about four miles of fencing It is proposed to form a joint fence company thus reducing the cost of fencing on an average to $25 apiece

Messrs Watson & Sons have under their control nearly 4000 acres of very productive rich land Smithson Bros have nearly 2000 acres already purchased or being negotiated for Mr Penumbra Kelly will probably settle in this valley, and other energetic newcomers are discussing the locality Everybody is anxious to have the locks finished then Klickitat settlers will rejoice as they can ship their grain to Portland at greatly reduced rates If present plans are consummated this section of country will have a small store convenient next year and this valley is a fine healthy place for a summer resort, fishing hunting etc in abundance and a hotel will be run up there if there are visitors enough to warrant it next season

Some small towns are projected along the line of the new railroad There is a good show for a town at Alkali flat about ten miles above Celilo on the Columbia river

ORIORO

Bismarck's Early Life.

Previous to his marriage with Baroness Puttkammer Prince Bismarck, on whom his father in law was rather loth to bestow his daughter's hand as he had become acquainted with his future son-in-law's reckless pranks was known for his wild life which gained for him the sobriquet eccentric Bismarck Many stories were afloat of his love affairs some of which did great honor to him showing as they did his chivalrous regard for pure womanhood One of these accounts was lately recalled to my mind by the news of the chancellor having bestowed a handsome present on the daughter of a Tyrolese peasant girl, whose acquaintance he had made in his youthful rambles through the mountains This country maiden, whose father a Catholic was a peasant had so enchanted young Otto von Bismarck then probably not dreaming of the greatness in store for him that he seriously proposed for her hand an offer which was categorically refused by the parents on account of his Protestant faith He was sorely disappointed at the rebuff but tore himself away from the object of his affection who a few years afterward was against her wish forced to marry a stranger at home She settled at Salzburg and died there after giving birth to a daughter in whose welfare the chancellor took a warm interest On hearing of his protegee's engagement [illegible] Prince Bismarck sent her his best wishes accompanied by a valuable gift

Difference in Mobs

From the Toledo Blade

With all the violence and fury of the republican mob it does not appear yet that anybody has been knocked down even If Mississippians felt as deeply outraged as the Maine people did they would have before this massacred a negro village or two and shot a dozen of the opposition leaders through the back

A Pair of Brothers

From the Indianapolis Journal

How would Blackburn of Kentucky and Garcelon of Maine do for a democratic ticket The former wanted to murder whole communities and the latter is trying to steal an entire state They are representative democrats

The Moffatt bell punch scheme a device originating in Virginia for the collection of revenue from the retailing of liquor was adopted in many of the states with the same feverish haste which characterized the enactment of tramp laws The latter are now moribund and in Virginia the governor is found recommending the repeal of the Moffatt law as impracticable

A MAN WHO HAS BEEN TO SKAGIT

[illegible]

[illegible] trail [illegible] up the Skagit to Goodell's landing and then [illegible] six miles [illegible] who can handle a canoe in swift water can pole a canoe with three hundred pounds of freight from Mt Vernon on the Skagit to Goodell's in six days Many canoes so loaded with two Indians and two white men have made the trip in four or four and a half days One portage has to be made of about two hundred yards while the empty canoes are hauled with lines through the swift water where the freight is again loaded and taken to Goodell's the head of canoe navigation The river from here is full of tremendous [illegible] rapids canyons and falls until we pass the mouth of Ruby creek The present trail from Goodell's to Ruby creek is bad dangerous in many places yet men last summer packed 75 80 90 and some 100 pounds on their backs over the trail taking three days to the center of the camps A trail can be put from the portage to Ruby creek for $2000 fit for pack trains and the distance will not exceed 25 miles

Ruby creek properly should include Canyon creek but now it is called Ruby only from the junction of Canyon and Granite creeks making it about ten miles long Granite creek has never been prospected and no one has yet been to the head of Canyon Claims are located about four miles up Canyon, and nuggets weighing $4, $6 and $9 are found with good prospects of finer gold From the mouth of Ruby to the last claim on Canyon probably fourteen or fifteen miles the prospects are first class From one cent to $2 have been taken to the pan out of the gravel, while $20 $40 and $65 have been found in small crevices on the bedrock The hills are covered with quartz waste and colors have been found almost on the summits The whole country is covered with quartz of fine appearance It would pay men who understand this business to prospect for ledges as rock has been found here with small pieces of gold and silver in them Many pieces of platinum have been found in the sluices

Four men rocked out over 40 ounces in five weeks and packed their provisions A company of six cleaned up at the rate of $11 to the man per day working under great disadvantages They think from the prospects their claim will be at least ounce diggings But little of the surrounding country has been prospected Some good creeks have been discovered but will not be opened until summer

There will be two and perhaps three steamers on the upper river this spring connecting at Mt Vernon

A company has located a townsite at the portage the head of navigation and packers are waiting for the trail to be completed so they can put on animals to pack to Ruby creek Steamers will reach the portage from Seattle in two days and when the trail is finished a man can walk from there in one and a half days This route is not half the distance the Fort Hope trail will be, and can be traveled two months earlier in the spring There will be a great rush by the Skagit in February and March

NEWS NOTES FROM THE SOUND.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN]

SEATTLE Jan. 10

Weather cold and disagreeable

Mr Samuels of the West Shore is doing the Sound

The logging business promises to open up brisk in the spring

The Esterly chair factory at Tumwater has shipped upwards of 1400 chairs during the past year to California and the lower Sound markets

The elegant new five thousand dollar residence of our worthy ex Chief Justice J R Lewis, is almost ready for occupancy It is situated on Cherry street occupying a commanding position on a spacious terrace on the side hill overlooking the bay and is a credit to the city and the enterprise of its proprietor, rating as it does, first among the many fine private residences of our growing little city.

During the past year 1000 barrels of salmon have been shipped from the Sound to the California and other markets The salmon run however, has been exceedingly light, as is the case every few years Probably first in importance so far as our fisheries are considered is the oil business This branch is controlled mostly by the Indians who put up a large amount of oil from dog fish and seal The business, however, is getting into the hands of white men A company has been lately formed for the purpose of rendering oil from herring During the past year this company have shipped 3000 gallons of this oil to the various markets of the coast

Potatoes are a complete drug in the market this year Potatoes had been high for the past two years and last season everybody went into potatoes and although the crop was a partial failure the yield in the aggregate was enormous Prices have dwindled down to from fifteen to twenty five cents per bushel and the farmers who have large lots of potatoes on hand are despondent On White river alone it is estimated that there are 50 000 bushels awaiting a market

The heavy and unprecedented snowfall of this week has taken the oldest inhabitant completely by surprise Nothing of the kind has ever been experienced here Even the memory of the old Hudson bay voyageur runneth not back to a time when over four feet of snow lay upon the ground on Puget sound and still it comes with no prospect of letting up What the outcome may be no one can predict Should the snow go off with a heavy rain the damage to the farming community, especially along the river bottoms will be great Already the damage done by the caving in of roofs is considerable. In this city business for the most part has been suspended and things generally are at a deadlock

She was from Texas.

A couple of smart chaps were riding in a buggy last Sunday says an exchange and drove up to where an old man and woman were seated in a wagon to which was hitched a pair of oxen They had come from Texas and were going to Missouri

Hello old man how much will you take for your wife cash up?" said one of the smart chaps

Well, let's see said the man scratching his head I guess a hundred dollars I'll take her

Give you seventy five replied the smart chap

Take her said the old man and I'll throw the wagon and oxen in

The boys in the buggy were beat and commenced to drive off when the old woman jumped out of the wagon and exclaimed

Hand over the chink stranger [illegible] this yere family [illegible] by no fellers wearin stove pipe hats and paper collars you bet yer [illegible] on that We're from Texas we [illegible]

MONDAY MORNING, JAN. 12 1880.

SAVE THE TIMBER.

The great destruction of timber, caused by the great storm of last week, naturally awakens some thought as to what the people of this land will do when the country is denuded of forests. The storm in question destroyed tens of thousands of trees, and of course nothing will be done to replace them. The houses, fences and bridges that were blown down will be rebuilt, making still further inroads upon the forests for the purpose, but no one will think of doing anything to restore the forests. In this particular part of the country it will be hard to convince the people of the necessity of economy in the denudation of forest lands, because timber is so abundant, but to those who have long lived in Portland, and who have seen the steady advance made by the wood-choppers upon the groves surrounding the city, the conclusion must come that, unless more economy is practiced, the green hills around Portland, now so pleasant to the eye of every visitor, will ultimately become as bald as those which surround those of San Francisco. The law cannot regulate this matter, except upon government land, and therefore public sentiment must be educated upon the subject up to a point at which individual land-owners will begin the need reformation. The storm which destroyed so much Oregon timber is not likely to be repeated in a generation, and hence the causes which operate to thwart the efforts of those who would preserve our forests are about all under man's control. An English writer, who recently visited this country declares the timber waste and the neglect of tree culture as absolutely sinful, and predicts a time when the inhabitants of America will look upon the indifference of the people of this age as guilty of an irremediable wrong in this matter.

GOLD AND SILVER PRODUCTS.

The superintendent of census, as we noticed last week, is making extensive preparations to secure more reliable statistics of every interest and industry of the country than have ever been gathered before. The yield of the precious metals, if it could be reliably ascertained as to amount, might be of value to those who are seeking to establish their relative worth with each other and trying to fix the amount of paper money necessary to conduct the business of the country, over and above the accessible gold and silver. The census statistics of these metals have never been of any value, but have always been erroneous and misleading. In 1860 actual returns were received from only 2202 "mining establishments," with a product of only $27,513,170, and estimates were made of the product of 5000 from which no returns were received. Of the $27,513,170 actually returned, $10,136,000 belonged to two establishments in San Francisco county, California, employing but 15 men, and paying but $16,440 annually in wages. These must have been simply refining and assaying offices, and therefore the remainder, $17,378,170, represents the actual product accounted for out of a total product of $45,000,000. Although special efforts were made to obtain accurate statistics for the census of 1870, only $26,452,652 were reported, out of a product of $61,000,000.

J. J. Valentine, of Wells, Fargo & Co's express, in his estimate of the yield of the precious metals in the states and territories west of the Mississippi, for 1879, puts down Nevada for $22,000,000, California for $18,000,000, Colorado for $14,300,000, Utah for $5,500,000, and other states and territories for smaller figures. In regard to Colorado he says he has taken the mean of "the two most reliable reports," neither of which he accepts as entirely trustworthy. The Denver Tribune of the 1st inst. makes a comprehensive review of the mining industry of its state, and, after covering four pages with accounts of the leading mines and their statistics, sums up with the total of each county, the total of the state for 1879 being $19,110,000. Colorado is therefore second, if not first, in the list of the precious metal producing states, and is very likely to be in the lead at the close of 1880. She has gained $10,000,000 during 1879. Colorado's silver, however, is mostly from the smelting ores, which are found in irregular deposits and are soon exhausted, and unless new leads are discovered in that state and Nevada they will ultimately take places second to California, which has a steady source of supply in the deep gravel beds of the dead rivers of the Sierra Nevadas.

That the mining statistics gathered by the census office this year may be more satisfactory than heretofore, and more valuable as data for financial legislation and business calculation, a complete understanding has been reached between Superintendent Walker and the recently created bureau of geological survey, and the scientific direction of the investigation of the gold and silver mining of the country, has been undertaken by Hon. Clarence King, director of the geological survey. The administrative charge of the work will be with the census office. Parties engaged in this work have been in the field since last July. Several of the principal mining regions of the west have been already brought under investigation, and the superintendent feels assured that it is already put beyond doubt that that portion of the reports of the tenth census which deals with the gold and silver product, will be of the highest authority.

A SYSTEMATIC MOVE.

The colored people who are trying to get out of the south, may not be educated or wealthy; they may not be lawyers, doctors or preachers; very few of them, in fact, understand the art of making a living by anything but hard knocks. But they are wise enough to know that it is not best for all of them to go to Kansas, and therefore are turning their attention to other parts of the country. Indiana, as we noticed yesterday morning, is now attracting the attention of a great many of these people in North Carolina, because there seems to be a good demand for their labor. The movement from North Carolina seems to be more orderly and systematic than that which took place from Louisiana and Mississippi. One colored agent collects intending emigrants at Goldsborough, and conducts them to Washington; another awaits them there, and conducts them to Terre Haute or some other point in Indiana, where engagements have been made for them in advance. Up to the present time 650 persons, 400 of them males, have been transferred in this way, and another 200 will shortly be added to the number. In spite of the confident assertions of Senator Voorhees, Indiana farmers and other employers are ready to take all the colored laborers that come, and the demand for female servants is greater than can be supplied. Almost without exception the emigrants have paid the cost of their transportation in advance, and of such as are able to do so are invited to [illegible]. The entire scheme differs in no essential particular from the change of residence which is being made every week by white people desirous of bettering their condition. It [illegible] something of an impertinence to set a [illegible] committee to work to ascertain the reasons for such a movement, though incidentally, an honest investigation might reveal some instructive details as to the kind of treatment which drives the negro away and the methods which are employed to defeat any free action on his part to find better wages and more pay.

About $25,000,000 interest on the national debt was paid by the government at the beginning of the year, [illegible] which dividends to the amount of $80,000,000 were paid by various companies and corporations, thus adding $80,000,000 to the circulating capital of the country. This money will go into the hands of people who will want to loan it, and is regarded by business men as insuring an amount of loanable funds in the money centers of the United States sufficient to carry on an increasing volume of the business of the country, without the slightest stringency. If the country stands the reaction from the era of unusual activity which has prevailed since last summer, the abundant supply of money will produce a wonderful development of all our material resources. The Chicago Tribune, remarking upon this great addition to the circulating capital of the country, says a part of this money will be employed to build new railroads, and the remainder will find various uses; some of it will go into real estate speculations and building improvements, and a considerable part will be offered for loan on mortgage security. A portion will be employed to enlarge manufactories or erect new ones. An easy money market and prosperous times may be confidently anticipated if congress behaves itself and doesn't go to fooling with the currency.

A letter from Secretary Sherman to Senator Morrill on the subject of refunding is now made public. The secretary states that a total of $772,761,700 of United States bonds will become due and redeemable between now and the 1st of July, 1881, and as it is plain that such an amount cannot be paid off within the next eighteen months, he has recommended that authority be granted for refunding these bonds at 4 per cent. He believes the present time to be particularly advantageous for carrying out a refunding plan, but has no faith at all in the practicability of Fernando Wood's scheme of refunding at 3½ per cent. interest, as he is certain that bonds bearing that rate of interest could not be sold at par.

It has generally been considered that the only pauper millionaires in New York were Tilden and Vanderbilt, but it is asserted that John Jacob Astor pays tax on only $30,000 worth of personal property; August Belmont doesn't pay any; James Gordon Bennett on $25,000; A. J. Drexel on $100,000; Joseph A. Harper, "sworn off;" Mrs. A. T. Stewart on $500,000; Clarkson N. Potter, "sworn off;" Samuel J. Tilden on $90,000; William M. Evarts on $25,000; Peter Cooper on $110,000; Cyrus W. Field, "sworn off," and Hugh J. Jewett on $20,000.

It is reported that Russian nihilists have distributed a circular among the peasants stating that the czar had issued a decree ordering the landed proprietors to divide their estates among the peasantry. The peasants on the estate of Count Schouvaloff, seeing that he was in no hurry to make the division, seized his castle, drove out the servants and sacked it. The military were called in, but as the peasantry of other estates made common cause with the rioters, and all were heavily armed, the soldiers were not successful.

Although the wires have been down since the day for the meeting of the Maine legislature, from the reports up to the evening of the preceding day, it is safe to assume that the democrats and greenbackers have failed to get away with the state government and that Garcelon now feels himself worse abused than ever. He used to be a republican and his course recalls forcibly to mind the case of the man in scripture, whose "last days were worse than his first," and for whom it had been better, if he had never been born.

The San Francisco papers bring us the intelligence that James A. Garfield received the nomination for United States senator of Ohio by the republican caucus. This was as predicted, only instead of there being a contest for the honor all other candidates were withdrawn and the nomination conferred by acclamation. Garfield, although one of the most prominent men of the United States, is not committed on the presidential contest, and his nomination cannot be taken as an index of the coming contest for president.

The sun was eclipsed yesterday afternoon, the phenomenon being visible on this coast where it was not too cloudy. Prof. Payne, the great Boston astronomer, arrived in California a few days ago with a monstrous telescope to see all that could be seen.

THE NORTHWEST.

The Willamette Valley.

Wheat is $1 at Corvallis.

Eugene has a gymnastic club.

Albany's indebtedness is $817 52.

The river at Salem is 25 feet above low water mark.

J. J. Flett of the Benton Blade was married to Miss Mary A. Eglin on New Year's day.

Reports are that high water has washed away a number of bridges in the western part of the county.

Most of the logs washed away by the rise in the north fork of the Santiam at Latham's will be saved, having washed down about a mile and lodged.

Albany price current: Wheat $1 per bushel, oats 35 cents per bushel flour $6 per barrel, hay, baled $15 per ton, loose $10, potatoes 50 cents per bushel, butter 20 to 25 cents per lb, eggs 30 cents per dozen, pork 5 to 5½ cents per pound, hams 13 cents.

During the last freshet the mill dam across the North Santiam at Scio, was partly washed away. The expense will be considerable putting in a new one. This dam turned the water into a race that supplies Salem with water power during summer.

Scio correspondent:—There are better times in the forks of the Santiam than any part of Linn county, and money is very close here. The tax collector reports less delinquency and only three foreclosures of mortgages have been made this past harvest.

The following officers were elected at the Lebanon municipal election: President of the council, Luther Elkins; recorder, G. W. Smith; marshal, Z. Bryant; treasurer, David Andrews; council, J. W. Cusick, Jonathan Burkhart, J. M. Ralston and A. Ervin.

Recently Mr. Foster, of Independence, had a fat cow killed for beef, and in dressing it the butcher found in the stomach of the cow a pound or more of nails, pieces of wire, scraps of old iron, horse nails, etc. These foreign substances did not appear to disagree with the animal.

Albany Democrat: Burrigan & Co's mammoth drive of logs, containing about $5,000,000 feet of magnificent saw logs, passed Brownsville last Tuesday and has "jammed" about four miles below that place. It is very fortunate that the drive was stopped, as a few miles below the Calipooia is out of its banks. After the river falls the logs will again be started for this city.

Chas. Ralston was in from Lebanon this week and he informs us that the people of that city are getting in earnest about having railroad connection with Albany. Last week they had a public railroad meeting and appointed a committee to confer with the O. & C. R. R. Co; and this committee was instructed to ascertain definitely what aid the railroad company would expect from the people. This committee consists of L. Elkins, D. P. Ballard, C. B. Montague, Jos. Nixon, and J. B. Settle, and they will go to Portland in a few days. We understand that Koehler has virtually promised that a railroad should be built to that city in time to move the next crop. If this is so the future looks bright for Lebanon.—Albany Democrat.

Southern Oregon.

The Umpqua river is very high.

J Clark succeeds in getting mail and passengers through to Scottsburg, from Drain, in very good time, considering the bad roads.

The following are the business transactions of the Roseburg land office for December: 262 acres sold for cash; 19 homestead entries embracing 2880 acres; 11 final homestead entries, embracing 1638 acres; 13 pre-empti on filings; 4 donation certificates issued.

Civil Bend, Douglas county, correspondence: From a party of prospectors just in from Rogue river and the Big Meadows, I learn that a dead Chinaman was found on the trail leading from the Big to the Little Meadows, just opposite Battle Bar. When found he was wrapped up in his blankets as if asleep, with a pipe and some bottles and a satchel by his side. The boys sent at once for some Chinamen to take charge of his remains. He was supposed to have been dead some three months, but there was nothing about him to indicate his distinction, or where he was from,—nothing but the poor, cold remains to tell the story of his wretched and tragical death, on a wild and lonely trail, in a strange land.

CITY.

TWO MEN REPORTED DROWNED.—Since the heavy storm of Friday there have been several reports in circulation to the effect that two men were drowned while attempting to cross the river during the height of the gale. H. Zimmerman, driver of the U. S. [illegible] wagon, says that he saw two persons attempting to cross the river opposite Smith's sawmill when the storm was at its angriest mood and the spray driven in clouds by the wind. The skiff occupied by the drowned men was small and light, and was tossed like a cockle-shell from wave to wave, almost hidden in the trough and again coming to the surface of the immense [illegible]. For a while the few spectators thought the rowers would succeed in reaching the other shore; but from their conflict [illegible] it was seen they had lost their strength and presence of mind, and were unable to guide the craft, which, losing headway, turned broadside to the storm and was instantly capsized. The occupants were seen for one moment struggling in the angry waters, and the next they disappeared altogether beneath the surface to be seen no more. Several other persons give it as their belief that no one was drowned, but they saw a portion of the trunk of a tree which was driven before the blast, that it might have readily been mistaken for a boat. The object was tossing and pitching, and the limbs looked as if they were the arms of persons clinging to the keel of an upturned boat. So far as can be ascertained, no persons have been reported missing, and it is quite probable that Mr. Zimmerman was mistaken when he thought he saw two persons struggling in the water.

PROF. MUIR'S LECTURE TO-NIGHT.—The lecture at Turn Halle this evening on the "Glaciers of California and Alaska," by Prof. John Muir, the celebrated geologist, promises to be intellectual and entertaining. If his conversations are an index to his platform utterances, the lecture will be free from the technical and usually unintelligible terms that characterize scientific addresses, and those who have studied glacial formations instruct the average auditor and induce young students to closer study of that interesting branch of geology. The lecture will be illustrated. Tickets can be had at J. K. Gill & Co.'s, D. W. Prentice & Co.'s and of any member of the Natural Science Association.

INFORMATION DESIRED.—William Williams left Vancouver on the 27th of July, 1877, with a party from Portland on The Dalles boat for the Black Hills, and is supposed to have reached there about the time of the massacre by the Indians. He left a wife and child at Vancouver and nothing has been heard of him since he left. If any of the party should see this they would confer a favor on his family by giving information of him. Address this office.

REPORT CONTRADICTED.—The Salem Statesman says: "A few days ago we learned that Spencer Hill, a young man well known in this community, had committed suicide at Albany by cutting his throat. We now learn on good authority that such is not the case, and that Spencer is not dead but liveth. We fail to see the point why any one should start such a ghastly report as that, and the one who started it cannot be too severely condemned."

SUPREME COURT.—Friday's wind storm at Salem had no respect for the supreme court of the state of Oregon, and as the water commenced trickling down upon the heads of the court the chief justice gravely ordered an adjournment until to-day at 10 o'clock A. M., which will convene in the senate chamber of the capitol building.

A GROSS BREACH OF ETIQUETTE.—It had been considered that whistling or singing "Pinafore" was an unpardonable offense to good manners, but even such an outrage is [illegible] by the question fired at telegraph operators, telephone boys, railroad officials, and [illegible] patient reporters, "Are lines up?"

WAIVED AN EXAMINATION.—Lizzie Smith, accused of larceny of rings from a relative of hers, waived examination Saturday afternoon in the police court, and was held to answer before the grand jury in the sum of $250.

BOARD OF TRADE.—The regular monthly meeting of the board of trade will be held this (Monday) evening at the rooms at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

CONCORDIA CLUB.—This club will give one of their very select and enjoyable social parties at the room on First street, on the evening of Friday, 16th inst.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will announce a decision in this court this morning on the demurrer to the answer in the case of McKenzie v. Hamilton.

NOTARIES APPOINTED.—S. G. Candle of St. Helens and D. P. Dwight of Weston have been appointed notaries public by Gov. W. W. Thayer.

FUNERALS.

Yesterday the funeral of the late William [illegible] took place from the residence of [illegible]. The funeral was conducted by the members of the Portland Bar and the lodges of the A. O. U. W., Hope No. 1, [illegible] No. 8, Pacific No. 17, and Fidelity No. 4 of East Portland. The cortege was [illegible] the several societies appearing to the number of 150 men, marshaled by Mr. Frank [illegible] L. Barnard and D. H. Stearns. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: From Hope Lodge, F. W. Robinson, [illegible]; Industry, J. F. Caples, M. E. [illegible]; Pacific, Col. J. R. Wheat and C. [illegible]. The bar was represented by Messrs. J. Gilbert and C. A. Ball. A long line of carriages followed the procession to the silent city beyond the river.

The funeral of Harry P. Hinrichs, who was killed in the Bremen hall disaster, Friday morning, took place yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of Oneonta Lodge, No. 3, [illegible], from the hall of that order, on [illegible] street, between Washington and Stark. The remains were accompanied by a large number of Turners and sorrowing friends to their last resting place in Lone Fir Cemetery.

A NEW WEEK OF PRAYER.

The pastor will preface each service with a ten-minute lecture. Services begin promptly at 7:45 o'clock and close promptly at 8:45. Strangers and all others are cordially invited.

FRIDAY'S TEMPEST.

Destruction of Property Throughout the Willamette Valley.

A School House Crushed at La Center and Three Children Killed—Forests and Orchards Laid Waste—Houses Unroofed and Barns and Fences Thrown Down.

LATEST REPORTS BY MAIL AND MESSENGER.

Thrilling Peril of the Steamboat "Dixie Thompson" in the Columbia River, off Brookfield—Astoria and the Shipping in the River Escape Serious Damage.

The storm which raged on Friday was not only the most violent in [illegible], but the most general and severe ever visited this section. Reports from various points, from Roseburg to many miles north of the Columbia river, and between the Cascade mountains and the Pacific ocean, state that each in [illegible] that its force was unprecedented. The collection of news has been greatly embarrassed and delayed by the prostration of all telegraph lines leading from this city and the impassable condition of railroads and highways, and many localities are not represented in our reports because communication of any kind is simply impossible. THE OREGONIAN has spared no effort or expense in securing reports, and presents the latest and fullest which could be obtained from reliable sources. Washington, Yamhill and Polk counties, on the west side of the Willamette are the only localities where the tempest probably raged fiercely, which has not yet reported. The result in general view, is there probably similar to the effect on the east side, detailed and careful accounts of which are presented below. It is not possible, upon the imperfect and scattering data now at hand, to estimate accurately or fairly the value of the property destroyed but it will certainly be great. The damage to fences and the destruction of orchards and forests will appear as the most important items, however, while the obstruction of roads will in many localities for a time stagnate business and cause a loss not so apparent but no less real. The most lamentable incident of the storm is the distressing death of three school children at La Center, W. T.

The enterprise which the railroad and telegraph companies have displayed in repairing obstructions and breaches is truly admirable, and by to-morrow all roads will be open. The work of rebuilding the telegraph lines is necessarily slower as many hundreds of poles were thrown down, but it is expected that through communication will be opened by Wednesday. In the meantime the public has the opportunity of amusing itself by guessing at what the great outside world is doing, and may possibly find consolation that the tedious and annoying delay will matter but little a hundred years from now.

THE CITY.

Additional Losses and Incidents.

Jack O'Donnell, who was crushed by the falling of Bremen Hall, Friday, and who has been reported several times as dead, was removed to St. Vincent's hospital late in the evening, had the fractured limb set and his other wounds dressed. Last night he was resting easily and hopes are entertained for his recovery. Walter Vivian, whose injuries are worse than was first supposed, is at St. Vincent's also, suffering some with pain in the back. Both men are well cared for by the sisters of that institution.

The stocks in several of the First and Front street buildings, which were unroofed, have been slightly damaged by the rain which leaked through. A few firms kept forces of men in their stores Saturday and Sunday night, watching goods and covering them where necessary.

Numerous tinners were busily engaged Friday night, Saturday and Sunday, in putting down new roofs and repairing damages.

There is not enough tin now in store in Portland, to replace the roofs destroyed and damaged by the storm.

The Vancouver ferryboat Veto has temporarily taken the place of the Eliza Ladd on the Stark street route. The Veto makes the trips in splendid time.

Eight lamp posts in the western portion of the city have been twisted so badly as to be rendered useless.

About one-half of the roof over Neustadter Bros.' store on Front street, between Oak and Pine, was torn up by the wind. Notwithstanding the exposed condition of the building the members of that firm set to work with a will and in a very short time moved their immense stock of goods to another part of the building and caused the roof to be temporarily repaired. No damage worthy of mention was sustained by them.

The lines are down in every direction and in a terrible condition. Large forces of men are engaged in repairing lines, but they will have to be built new in numerous places.

The windmill attached to A. H. Johnson's residence west of the city was completely demolished.

The roof of Mr. Guild's barn some distance below Watson's addition was taken off. The barn was filled with hay. Several men are engaged in repairing the damage.

A large window pane in the residence of M. S. Burrell on Eighth street blew in and cut Mrs. Burrell severely about the head and face.

Capt. A. A. Sorensen's new boathouse, at the foot of Fifteenth street, was blown over, but not entirely demolished; loss, $600.

The unfinished residence of F. Clarno on Nineteenth street was blown down.

NEAR PORTLAND.

Damage Reported on all Sides—No Serious Loss or Fatal Accident.

Mr. S. S. Penwell, living on the old John Fice place, four miles south, on the Boone ferry road, reports his large barn blown down. Four-fifths of the timber between there and town is prostrated.

Mr. A. Gubser, four miles northwest of the city, reports the road completely blocked with fallen trees. Fences are down in all directions. He heard of no damage to buildings or stock.

The Mt. Tabor church was blown thirty yards from its foundation, down the hill, but did not break up.

On the road near J. W. Kern's place the county bridge was crushed by falling timber. In three hundred yards, on one place, 65 trees fell. In another place 200 trees were counted in a quarter of a mile. Mr Kern had six trees fall across his barn, but, fortunately, although full of cattle and farm machinery, but little damage was done.

On Cason prairie barns, several outbuildings and fences are reported wrecked. Johnson creek is choked with logs, and the whole country is in danger of being flooded. The farmers in that vicinity consider matters as extremely critical.

Sherlock's windmill, two miles down the river, was destroyed; loss, about $200.

The O. & C. train this morning encountered twenty-one fallen trees between Oregon City and this city.

A gentleman who arrived here from C. P. Bacon's place, in Washington county, six miles west of this city, states that there are by actual count 257 trees across the road.

There are 385 trees across the west side track between here and Beaverton fifteen miles south.

Vice President Koehler went out on the west side road this morning and will have the road cleared as quickly as possible. The fall of timber all along the road has been very heavy, but no serious accidents have been reported. The probabilities are that trains will be running Tuesday or Wednesday.

A person sent out by the O. S. N. Co to look after the line between here and Sandy has returned and reports that in a great many places trees are lying across the wire four and five feet deep. A party has been sent out to repair the line, but it will be a slow and difficult task. It will be impossible to take a team owing to the fallen timber and the work of repairing the line will have to be done on foot.

Mr. T. C. Humphrey, residing near Mt. Zion school house, three miles west of town, had one barn and all his fencing blown over, and 10 acres of timber destroyed. Another barn was listed, but was held up by several tons of hay which it contained. His loss is about $500.

Mr. Davenport in the same neighborhood, had his fences blown down, and most of his valuable orchard destroyed. His dwelling was listed so that the doors could not be opened.

Mt. Zion school house was partially unroofed, and thirty trees surrounding it leveled.

Of 80 acres of timber, owned by J. P. Fort, beyond Judge Marquam's, only fifty trees are standing this morning.

The dwelling of G. Gaston was badly listed. The neighbors have assembled, and are assisting him to get it back into position.

All the timber on the north side of the Poor farm is flat.

Fallen timber lies to the depth of eight or ten feet in the wooded sections about Mt. Zion school house, and the road to this city is strewn with trees.

The houses of J. P. Watson and F. B. Mays were crushed by falling timber. No one hurt. The roofs of Mr. C. W. Ransom's and Mr. Daniels' barns were blown off.

The base line road is blocked with fallen timber; 107 trees were counted in a quarter mile.

The residence of Mrs. J. McCann, adjoining the park, was demolished by a falling tree. Mrs. McCann and six children were in the house at the time, but escaped injury.

Reliable reports from Springville and from seven miles below on the Columbia, state that at least one third of the timber is destroyed. No loss of life nor damage to buildings has been reported from that vicinity.

THE EAST SIDE.

Further Reports from East Portland, the Sandy District and Other Points.

Chauncey Ball's barn on the Base line road, two miles east of Portland, was blown down; loss about $500.

Bettyman's house near Sandy was demolished by falling trees.

The Chinese laundry of Jim Lee, on J street, near Water, fell with a crash into the slough below and many thereby will mourn the loss of their Sunday washing. No one injured.

The residence of James Mehan on Sixth and O street, was demolished by a number of trees falling thereon. Occupants barely escaped with their lives.

The residence of Wm. Stephens, Fifth and F streets, was blown from its foundation. No other damage.

A dwelling belonging to Mr. Keller, on E and Ninth, was lifted completely from its foundation.

Mr. Wood's barn, occupied by three horses, on G and Fifth, was blown to smithereens, and the horses more or less injured.

The Fourth street bridge between A and B streets, is in a precarious condition, through a huge fir tree falling thereon.

The barn of Mrs. Burns, on Sixth and M streets, was demolished.

The facing of the old brewery on Fourth and L streets, is nearly all blown off.

A number of trees, small out-buildings, roofs, fences, signs, and other light material suffered extensively, and accidents of this nature are too numerous to mention.

Holladay's addition suffered severely by the storm.

Albert Gee's big story residence at the corner of Willamette and Eighth streets, which had just been erected at a cost of $[illegible] was lifted from its foundation and badly demoralized. The loss will be at least $[illegible].

The two-story residence of Mr. [illegible] four or five blocks beyond Holladay's avenue, was wrecked. Loss about $[illegible].

The residence of Mr. [illegible] in Holladay's addition was also blown down.

A residence was blown [illegible] Stephens' addition, and its occupants found it difficult to obtain shelter for the night. The man, we hear, works on a switch engine, but we could not learn his name.

A barn belonging to John Exon, on Sixteenth street was blown down. It was occupied at the time by three horses, one of which was severely injured.

John Fay while returning home Friday evening, fell through the broken sidewalk on L street, and received a severe gash under his chin.

The roads through the Columbia bottom are blocked with fallen timber and will be impassable for several days. W. W. Spaulding's driver, who has had a band of one hundred cattle on the road between The Dalles and Troutdale for the past two weeks, found himself hemmed in Saturday morning and drove the cattle to David [illegible]'s place on the slough. They will be brought here on the Tuesday.

The Scandinavian Evangelical Lutheran church of East Portland, was moved about three feet from its foundation and the chimney was blown over. The iron bar bearing the cross is bowed and the vestry is also damaged. The building was severely strained by the shock, but can be occupied in its damaged condition, and repaired at a slight cost.

John Fay received a severe gash under the chin by a piece of flying sheet iron.

A [illegible] dwelling was unroofed; loss, $300.

The residence of C. H. Meusdorffer was damaged; loss, $350.

A. G. Cunningham's residence was damaged to the extent of $100.

The storm raged with great fury at the insane asylum, but the large building escaped without damage.

A barn belonging to J. A. Kenworthy situated some distance beyond the asylum, tumbled down during the continuance of the gale.

ALONG THE O. & C. R. R.

Notes from Various Points between Portland and Albany—The Storm Unbroken All Along the Line.

Mr. H. Baum, of Albany, who was a passenger on the express train, which after many delays arrived at 6 o'clock this morning, furnishes the following items regarding accidents and events along the line from Albany to Portland:

The fine woodshed at the Albany depot was thrown down. The fire bells at same place rang during the excitement. The tower on engine house No. 1 shook perceptibly. Fences, signs and chimneys were distributed about generally.

Trees were thrown across the track all the way down and necessarily caused delays. Passengers and officers on the train worked their way along, and at Oregon City they were reinforced by the construction party which had preceded them some distance. Telegraph lines were so badly demoralized that our informant thinks they cannot be put in working order for some days.

The church at Brooks' station was completely destroyed, and a house at the same point partly destroyed.

The grist mill at Gervais was badly damaged and houses were removed from their foundation.

Part of the depot at Woodburn was torn off.

Rocks fell on the track below Oregon City and cut the rails for some distance.

The woolen mill at Oregon City was unroofed, and great excitement prevailed in the city.

The train was in charge of Conductor Bogart and Engineer Jack Miller, who did their whole duty and made the best of the matter.

General Notes on the Condition of the Road and the Telegraph Lines.

The north bound passenger and mail train did not reach here Saturday evening until about 6 o'clock P. M. The delay was mainly attributable to the quantity of snow on the track beyond Albany.

The regular mail train will leave here this (Monday) morning for Roseburg at the usual hour.

The express train will leave for Albany this afternoon at the usual hour.

The road between East Portland and Roseburg is free from obstructions, and no further delay of trains so far as the storm is concerned will occur.

A locomotive was sent up the road yesterday, having on board a force of telegraph repairers. The line is working very well between Albany and Roseburg, and it is thought that the wire will be put in operating condition between Portland and Albany some time this afternoon.

The O. & C. R. R. Co. is making every exertion to repair all the damage done by the storm. The timber fall beyond Albany is reported to be rather light. Between Salem and Albany the gale played havoc with the timber. Hundreds and hundreds of trees are reported to be lying along the line of the road between the points mentioned above. Most of the trees fell toward the north, and as the railroad track runs north and south the timber was prostrated parallel. Had the wind swept in any other direction the track would have sustained great damage.

NORTHERN MARION.

The Railroad Depot and Other Buildings at Woodburn Damaged—The Planer in the Saw Mill Demolished. Other Losses.

WOODBURN, Jan. 10, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The most terrible wind storm passed over this part of Oregon ever witnessed by the oldest inhabitant. The storm struck the prairie at 10:45 A. M. and lasted till 3 P. M. with unabated fury. I cannot compare the fury and noise to anything less than a heavy and hotly contested battle.

Thousands upon thousands of the giants of the forests now lie upturned and twisted. Many miles of fencing was torn down. In our village one house was blown off its foundation, but can be repaired at small expense. Mr. A. Mathoit's property is damaged lightly. Mr. Remington's saw mill is badly damaged. He loses a new planer entire. Not a piece left that could even be used again if at the factory.

All the roads through the timber are filled with fallen timber, and looks as though it would take weeks to clear them for travel. One road running east from town has forty trees across the track. Mr. Samuel Layman, one mile south of Woodburn, had his barn unroofed, also the depot here has lost the east side of its roof. No person was hurt that I have heard of yet.

P. S.—Since writing the above I have heard of several barns and other out buildings being blown down. Mr. Casey loosing part of his band of sheep.

From Another Correspondent.

WOODBURN, Jan. 9th.

A frightful storm occurred at Woodburn and over the surrounding country to-day. Mr. W. D. Morris' barn was blown from its blocks, one window was torn out of his dwelling, and several other windows were broken. Small out-houses all over town were blown down. Mr. A. Mathoit's woodshed was wrecked, and a part of the roof of the depot carried away. A large tree fell across the saw mill, crushing through, and crushing the planer which was worth about $700. A good part of Mr. B. F. Hall's orchard was overthrown and much other damage done.

Hubbard and Vicinity—Houses Damaged—Orchards and Forests Thrown Down and Roads Blockaded on all Sides.

HUBBARD, Marion Co., Jan. 10, 1880.

One of the most terrific storms ever known in Oregon passed over this place yesterday, prostrating fences for miles and completely leveling a grove of large fir trees of about ten acres in extent, blowing scores of them down at one blast. The roads in every direction are blockaded with large trees, which overlap each other in every shape. One third of a large orchard of apple trees was uprooted and split open. A large barn about two miles from here, was entirely unroofed, and its contents—grain and hay—exposed. It commenced blowing at 10:30 A. M., and continued a perfect hurricane until 3 o'clock P. M. I have not yet been able to ascertain how many stock are killed, for the roads are so filled up with fallen timber that we have to walk. It will take weeks of labor before horses and wagons can travel. I have lived within one mile of Hubbard for thirty years and never saw the like or supposed such devastation could be caused by a storm. We have work enough to last for months fixing up fences, making rails, burning trees, &c. As far as I can ascertain it is just as bad for two miles west of us.

A LATER REPORT FROM SALEM.

The State House Seriously Damaged—Other Buildings Injured.

SALEM Jan. 10.

It is not possible to get reports of the storm from Polk and other sections on the west side of the Willamette, as communication of every sort is stopped; "Returns" from the country surrounding this city come in slowly; but it is certain that no great damage was done. Small losses, however, are common and nearly every farmer is, in a limited way, a sufferer. The most considerable damage done in this city was upon the state house, large strips of the tin covering being thrown from the roof, the amount of damage thus far being estimated at from $[illegible] to $150. Hon. R. P. Earhart, secretary of state, has been untiring in his efforts to prevent further damage to the building by the inclemency of the weather. The tin roofing being torn from the west wing directly over the supreme court room, it has been found necessary to provide temporary quarters for that body in the senate chamber, and as the roof is likewise torn off directly over that room, it will require unremitting attention to prevent the water from damaging the ceiling and walls. A force of men have been employed, who, with sponges and cloths, will take up the water as it falls on the floor above, and thus endeavor to prevent its leaking through. The snow having since fallen to the depth of about four inches on the level, men are employed in clearing off the roof, and canvas will be spread on the more exposed portions and no pains will be spared to prevent further destruction of the property of the state until it can be permanently secured from danger. The tin roof on the sister's school was likewise damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. The tin roofs on Holman's block, Breyman's corner and J. M. Conner's block were all more or less damaged, and the average tin plate artist is in active demand throughout the city. The Albany express train failed to put in its appearance last evening. Six University chimneys were demolished and the steps leading into the building badly demoralized. Signs and dry goods boxes are scattered around promiscuously. Fences are blown down and outhouses blown over in all parts of the city and people generally are to day engaged in repairing damages.

NORTHERN LINN.

Scio and its Neighborhood Ravaged.

SCIO, January 9, 1880.

A terrific wind storm passed over this section of country to-day, the 9th of January. It commenced about 10 A. M. and ceased its force about 2 P. M. The direction was from the south and southwest. In town signs were blown down, windows smashed in, branches of shade trees broken, roofs blown off and small out houses blown over. In the country the damage was mainly confined to fences and timber though some barns were unroofed. The tall fir trees are lying in every direction. The mail stage did not arrive until three hours after time. It was the most severe storm ever witnessed by the oldest inhabitant. Rain and snow fell at the same time. Fences are down everywhere.

SOUTHERN OREGON.

From train men we learn that in the southern portion of the state the storm was not as violent as in the north. The storm appears to have gained in violence on its northern course and at Portland had gained its greatest force. At Roseburg a portion of the town which is built of the most unsubstantial residences and structures, the storm is reported to have done comparatively little if any damage. Throughout the Umpqua valley the only damage reported is the blowing down of fences, an occurrence which takes place nearly every winter.

The telegraph line which is reported to be in working order between Albany and Roseburg, is still down south of the latter place, but perhaps there is no further break than has existed before the storm. If this supposition is correct the lines will perhaps be working in several days. From south of Roseburg nothing has been heard and until the mails arrive this evening, nothing definite can be learned.

THE LOWER COLUMBIA.

Perilous Situation of the "Dixie Thompson" near Brookfield, and her Rescue by the "Elder"—The Storm at Astoria.

The storm near the mouth of the Columbia seems to have been entirely distinct from the one which swept through the Willamette valley, and scarcely as severe or as prolonged. The wind was from the northwest, and did not commence to blow violently until nearly 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Elder crossed in at half past 9:00 A. M. arrived at Astoria at noon, and left at one o'clock with a wind blowing across her stern. When she had proceeded a few miles above Tongue Point the wind had increased to a gale, and the spray became so dense that the pilot was unable to see fifty feet ahead of the vessel. She shut off steam and rode quietly at anchor for an hour and a half.

The Dixie Thompson, Capt. Pillsbury, at the wheel, on her regular trip to Astoria, when just below Brookfield was struck across her beam by the gale and literally lifted her out of the water. She continued to toss from one side of the river to the other for an hour or more, the spray obscuring the sight of everything except the buoy. The waves washed over her decks and partially extinguished the fires under her boilers. At times a roll would strike the beam and send the boat over at an angle of forty five degrees or more. After the fury of the gale had somewhat subsided, the boat smashed her rudders against the ice shore in getting out of the way of a large log. Until that accident the boat steered well with the Gates apparatus and showed that the predictions made by many river men that the apparatus would be useless in a storm were mistaken. Her wheel was not materially damaged, and she was enabled to run backwards and forwards when necessary to keep away from rocks. She was several times blown violently against the [illegible], and it seemed as though her bottom would be stove in. It is needless to say that her 20 passengers were terrified. She finally drove to the Washington territory side and anchored a few miles below Brookfield, but in a very insecure place. Capt. Pillsbury maintained his characteristic coolness and excellent judgment, and has the unstinted praise of the passengers.

About four o'clock the Elder started up the river, while the wind was still blowing fiercely, and was signaled by the Dixie Thompson. At no small risk to his own vessel, Capt. Bolles, seeing the imminent peril of the boat, approached as near as he dared, and sent a line to the Thompson in one of the ship's boats. The line parted, and after a delay of an hour and a half a second line was fastened to the disabled boat, and she was towed safely to Brookfield where both lay until Saturday morning. The Elder brought the Thompson up the river, the latter transferring her passengers to the Bonita at Rainier. The Okhlahama relieved the Elder of her tow at St. John's, and all arrived here at 5:40 P. M. The action of Capt. Bolles can not be too highly commended, and adds much to the reputation of that excellent officer for bravery and humanity.

Timber Damaged in the Vicinity of Kalama—Land Slides on the Lewis River Road.

KALAMA, Jan. 10, 1879.

The storm at this place yesterday was severe. From 2 to 4 P. M. there was a fierce gale of wind mixed with rain and snow. The river was lashed into a fury. A great deal of timber was blown down and the roads into the country are completely blockaded.

On the road from here to Lewis river there were two heavy land slides. At Mr. Burk's place a mass of earth and trees about half an acre in extent, slid down the mountain, filled up the road at the base, destroyed a portion of the orchard and almost reached the house. At Mr. Black's place in the same neighborhood, a portion of the mountain, two or three acres in extent, and containing a number of large trees, was hurled down, filling up the road and destroying a small bridge and some fences.

The train from Tacoma arrived here yesterday about two and a half hours behind time. The snow is reported to be from three to five feet deep between Tacoma and Tenino, from the latter place to Winlock from two to three feet deep, and gradually diminishing toward Kalama, at which point it is about four inches deep. No damage was done here except the blowing down of two or three old sheds, value nominal.

At Astoria.

It has been the general impression here that the damage to shipping at Astoria would be very heavy. This, happily, is not the case. The passengers who arrived on the Alice last night from Astoria state that the storm, though violent, did comparatively little damage. The State of California which landed a few minutes after the gale sprung up, dislodged several piles in making her landing. The ship Wm. L. Seed, lying in the channel in front of the town, was blown over toward the sands, dragging her anchor, but was skillfully handled under the direction of the mate in charge, and drifted back into the channel. The Alice had her smokestack blown away.

Many trees back of Astoria were prostrated, and a few roofs were damaged.

The State of California crossed out at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

THE WEST SIDE.

Clearing Away Obstructions and Repairing Bridges Along the Line of the Railroad.

The work of opening the west side road is being pushed vigorously, though progress is slow of necessity. Several hundred men are engaged at various points between McMinnville and this city in removing trees from the track and in repairing bridges which were damaged. The road had been opened to bridge No. 9, three miles out of the city, at noon yesterday, and it was expected that that bridge would be completed by evening. Trains will not be able to go over the road to-day, but it is hoped that to-morrow's afternoon train will pull out as usual.

Blockaded Roads, Etc.

There has been no communication between Washington county and Portland since Friday morning last, and so it is impossible to give any report of the storm in that locality. That it was severe is certain. Parties of workmen sent out to repair the O. C. R. R. track in case such service was needed, have not returned as they would have done, had there been no occasion for remaining. The roads connecting this city with Hillsboro and other points in Washington and Yamhill counties, are so blockaded by fallen timber and land slides, that passage by wagon is impossible, and by horse extremely tedious and difficult. It will probably require several weeks to make the roads passable and the expense of repairing will be heavy.

A gentleman who lives some distance west of the city reports that the Cornell road is in a fearful condition from the storm. For a distance of five miles the road is filled with fallen timber and land slides. It is utterly impassable and the obstructions will not be removed for several weeks.

Gately's barn, at the head of the canyon, was blown down, and his fences were also prostrated. Some damage was done on the place of Mr. Jones in the same locality. The barn on Ladd's place was unroofed.

The canyon road is full of fallen timber, and it will require a fortnight to open it to travel. Bush and Pointer's timber lands were damaged to the extent of $3000.

SOUTHERN CLACKAMAS.

The Storm Rages with Disastrous Fury at Canby and Vicinity.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

CANBY, Or., Jan. 9, 3 P. M.

We are now having the severest storm ever known in this part of the country. Wind is blowing a heavy gale from the south, and is doing great damage here. The wood shed of the Oregon & California Railroad Co. is blown down, also part of the roof of the station house. Mr. J. C. Waigsmut's barn is unroofed, and several other small buildings, and nearly all the fences are scattered over the fields, large trees are blown up by the roots and broken off like pipe stems. There has been a perfect roaring like thunder for the last 3 or 4 hours in the adjoining timber.

At this present writing it seems as though the severest part of the storm was over, and the rain is pouring down in webfoot style.

Destruction of Timber and Loss of Cattle in Northern Clackamas.

CLACKAMAS, Jan. 10, 1880.

No great damage has been done by the storm to this neighborhood. A few sheds, fences and trees blown down, is about all. J. W. Roots reports great damage to timber in the neighborhood of Marshfield. On his place of about 60 acres that was nearly all timbered there are not more than four trees out of [illegible] left standing. It required a great deal of hard work for him to get out to Marshfield. The place looks so strange that he hardly knew where he was going and is not sure that he can find the way home. A great many cattle are hurt or killed in the timber by falling trees, and a number of barns and sheds blown down and houses unroofed, as far as he could see. All the roads are blocked with fallen trees.

UP THE COLUMBIA.

The Storm Prevails all along the Line—The Dalles Boat nearly Wrecked at the Cascades.

The storm raged with great fury all along the Columbia river to the upper Cascades and probably much further east. The [illegible] boat left Friday evening at the usual hour from the upper Cascades but was unable to resist the wind and was driven upon the shore of a small island a short distance above the upper bar. By great exertion she was gotten off but [illegible] to attempt the passage, tied up at her dock, where she remained until Saturday morning. There was consequently no boat from the Dalles on Saturday, and as the telegraph line is down no information has been received from that city since Friday morning.

Nothing has been heard from the Wasco or Queen, running between the Cascades and the Dalles, and it is not known whether she sustained damages or not.

The docks and warehouses of the O. S. N. Co's wharf boat at the Cascades were blown in and the boat otherwise damaged.

A portion of the O. S. N. Co's line between here and the Cascades is buried so deeply under fallen timber that a new line will have to be temporarily erected along the worst places. A large force is at work and communication will probably be had to the Cascades by Tuesday evening.

LA CENTER AND VANCOUVER.

A School House Crushed by a Falling Tree and Three Children Killed—Great Damage to Timber.

Vancouver suffered severely by the storm, though not to such an extent as the towns up the valley. The whole top was blown off the Alta house, and others had a similar experience. Trees were felled in every direction and the river is so full that navigation was sometimes seriously interfered with. Three houses at the garrison were also prostrated.

A house distant 2½ miles from Parker's landing, owned and occupied by Mr. Prettyman, formerly of East Portland, was entirely destroyed, though no member of the family was injured.

The steamer Traveler, which arrived here on Saturday, brought meager particulars of a most deplorable accident at La Center. A large and heavy tree several feet in circumference, fell directly across the school house which contained nearly two dozen children, instantly killing three of the children. We have been unable to obtain the particulars of this grievous affair or the names of the victims.

"CINCH."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The slang of to day is the great language of to morrow in swaddling clothes. Some of the strongest and most expressive words in our language were once mere slang. This is eminently true of the word "cinch" recently much used by one Oregon writer and criticised by others. It is a term used in the card game of pedro, a social game much played in parlors and elsewhere all over the country. Those who play the game understand its force as recently employed. The whole pack of cards is used. Four or five may play it, and nine cards are dealt out to each player. If six or more play, the number of cards given to each is reduced. The number of points that may be made on each hand is twenty-eight—high, low, jack, pedro, (or five spot), nine, ten-game. The one next on the left of the dealer has the sell. Each one plays his own hand alone. Each in succession offers to buy the seller, bidding against another. When the highest bid is made the seller accepts and is purchased, or refuses, and the balance of the players then combine to "cinch" him, and make as much out of it, each for himself, as they can consistently with the purpose of defeating the independent player who refused to be bought. But the main purpose of the conspirators' play on each hand is to prevent the one not selling from accomplishing his object, that is, preventing him from making as many as he was offered, and this is what is called "cinching" him.

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players."

DREAM OF THE FIRST PRINTER

The matter was set and locked in the chase
 And the printer sat down to his rest
His eyes grew heavy [illegible]
 [illegible] heaving breast
But his spirit [illegible] flight through the coming years
 And the future was brought [illegible] view
And he saw strange things as the centuries rolled [illegible]
 And all that he saw was true

His eyes were sealed [illegible] the things of the earth
 But his spirit like the winds was free
He saw the web of the years unrolled—
 Saw what the future would be—
How the click of the types and the notch of the [illegible]
 Would open the doors of the mind
Give [illegible]
 And open the eyes of the blind

He saw in his dreams the priest and the king
 Were stripped of the robes they wore
While a thousand bells made the welkin ring,
 And the cannon's thundering roar
[illegible] fair
 Born of the type and the press
And a [illegible]
 That [illegible]

He saw in his dream a beautiful land
 That the foot of a tyrant [illegible]
Saw written on mountains by inspired hands
 "Dedicated Freedom and God"
Saw temples of [illegible]
 By the rivers the lakes and the sea
Saw the [illegible] Liberty wave [illegible]
 The flag of the brave and the free

Then a shout went up that was heard afar
 By the men who toil and slave
Who awoke to life when they heard the [illegible]
 Saw the flag of the free and the brave
Then chains were broke and fell to the earth
 And a voice was heard to say—
Men have their rights by virtue of birth
 For freedom was born to-day

No longer shall men be ruled by the few
 And their minds be enslaved by a creed
That [illegible] of power the type and the press
 The minds of the people will lead
To a higher and nobler condition of life
 For no power on earth can stay
The onward march of the glorious [illegible]
 That will sweep the dark ages away

The printer awoke, and over the press
 A hand was seen to write—
"Thy name through the years of the future will be Written in letters of light,
For the types and the press will liberty bring,
 When a flag of stars is unfurled
When freedom of thought and freedom of mind
 Will be taught in the schools of the world

Wonderful Surgery.

The San Antonio correspondent of the Galveston News tells the following story of a wonderful surgical operation recently performed in the former city Dr I Herff has long been a resident of San Antonio, and is justly considered one of the best physicians and surgeons in Texas

San Antonio contains a wonder, the like of which cannot be found in the United States It is nothing more nor less than a child, seven years old that instead of masticating and swallowing its food in the usual manner, is fed through an aperature in the stomach made for that purpose The child is gaining strength, can walk and play, and bids fair to soon be as stout and healthy as any other child On Saturday last I determined to go and see the child for myself The facts are as follows,

About two years ago Mr. S T. Lumley, at that time living in Pennsylvania, had the misfortune to have his little daughter Jessie drink a solution of lye, which a negro woman had carelessly left on the table A large quantity of the corrosive liquid was swallowed. Death is the certain result in such cases. There have been quite a number of cases in San Antonio, where children drank concentrated lye, and none have survived except in this instance The lye destroyed the mucous membrane, and a stricture of the esophagus is formed, which means that the throat, or, at least, the channel through which the food goes into the stomach, is drawn together or contracted to such a degree that only liquids, and not much of them can pass through. If the child does not die at once, it lingers for a year or so, and then goes into a consumptive condition and perishes of slow starvation. It is impossible for a human being to live exclusively on liquid nourishment, but where concentrated lye has been taken there are times, particularly in cold damp weather, when the sufferer cannot even swallow milk All attempts to open the closed up esophagus are futile, hence the sufferer slowly starves to death.

Such was the condition of the little girl, Jessie Lumley, when she was brought to San Antonio for treatment The child was very much emaciated, and could not swallow even liquid food for days at a time. As it was the only possible chance she had for life, her parents consented that the operation of making an opening in the stomach should be attempted. The operation has been performed in England, but this is believed to be the first time it has ever been attempted in the United States. Your correspondent cannot give the technical terms, but can mak the modus operandi intelligible to the general reader An incision four inches long was made a few inches to the left of the pit of the stomach, at the beginning of the short ribs, much stitching being required. Through this incision the stomach is reached The next part of the operation requires the most delicate handling imaginable. It consists in sewing the stomach to the walls of the abdomen, but the greatest care has to be taken not to penetrate the stomach itself. The needle and stitches only penetrate the skin of the stomach The result is that the stomach, as the wound gradually heals, grows to the walls of the abdomen

The patient was put under the influence of chloroform, and the operation successfully performed by Dr F Herff, assisted by his son, Dr John Herff, and Dr. Amos Graves all of this city Unfortunately the child had an attack of the chills and fever, which had to be cured, which gave it a set back. The operation described took place three weeks ago The stomach had grown on to the sides of the abdomen, and eight days ago the final operation of making a small incision into the stomach through which the food was to pass, was performed, and twice a day during the past week a beefsteak cut up fine, has been passed with the forceps into the stomach and the child is steadily gaining strength

On Saturday last I visited the child, in company with Dr Herff, and saw it fed We halted in front of a one story house which we entered A little girl with light hair and blue eyes, was sitting up in bed surrounded by playthings Her mother a young woman of about thirty years of age, was busy in the room

"Don't you want your supper, Jessie?" said the doctor,

"I want steak I don't want any bread 'cos it hurts," said the little girl, whose thin features and pale complexion showed the result of her long fast

The mother brought in a rare beef steak, which the doctor proceeded to cut up in small pieces crumbling up some bread at the same time The food being prepared, the child lay back on the bed and the opening in the side was exposed It was only an inch in length, and presented the appearance of a badly healed cut It was a little inflamed I stood by and saw the doctor take one piece after another and carefully introduce it with the forceps into the stomach, until the plate was nearly empty The child complained a little at times, but did not appear to suffer any She finally said 'My stomach is full,' and as there was no more steak, the doctor desisted Finally some cotton was placed in the opening, a bandage put on, and she sat up and was soon fondling her playthings

The following additional facts may be of interest to the medical fraternity and others interested No particle of solid food has passed through the child's throat since the accident A grain of rice nearly strangles her Milk is also injected into the stomach through the opening The only possible danger is from the wound closing up hence it is kept open with cotton At first a plug of expansive cotton was used There is no reason why the child should not become stout and healthy The food digests readily just the same as if chewed and swallowed To the inquiry if this mode of taking nourishment would have to be kept up through life no definite answer was given as it depends on the possibility of reducing the stricture of the throat Dr Herff proposes to have as soon as the opening heals up completely an instrument introduced [illegible] to the stomach [illegible]

KOUMISS.

MILK CHAMPAGNE THE GREAT RUSSIAN REMEDY FOR WASTING AND NERVOUS DISEASES ITS REMARKABLE [illegible] ON THE HUMAN SYSTEM

As all the world knows [illegible] is heir to [illegible] and in spite of physicians and [illegible] health fails and disease triumphs over the human body [illegible] and making life miserable Many a powerful intellect has been forever weakened by the wasting power of sickness and it is no [illegible] thing for people of wealth to impoverish themselves [illegible] their health No specific [illegible] and finally the [illegible] [illegible] where Koumiss can be procured or milk champagne which is the great Russian remedy for wasting [illegible] manufactured by A M [illegible] A M and [illegible] been [illegible] of August, [illegible] interesting and [illegible] Koumiss making [illegible] the great [illegible] discoveries of the century

[illegible]

It has long been noticed that certain tribes of Eastern Russia were completely exempt from diseases which exhaust the strength and produce emaciation and as phthisis pulmonalis bronchitis chlorosis anemia etc This extraordinary immunity attracted the attention of physicians already awakened by the many reports attributing to the daily use of Koumiss the excellent health of these people, notwithstanding the detestable climate and hygienic condition in which they lived Scientific research followed and to-day Koumiss is recognized as the most powerful reconstituant in all debilitating diseases In 184 Dr Maydell Medical Inspector of the government of Orloff published a report of the therapeutic virtues of Koumiss Twenty years later the work of Dr [illegible] on the climate and diseases of the city of Samara (1863) made the reconstructing properties of this agent conspicuous attributing to it a specific power on the diseases of the respiratory organs Dr Chomenkoff attributed it to the same quality, with a conviction deeper yet having had occasion to experiment on himself in a chronic disease of the lungs of which he recovered

THE TRUE CHARACTER OF KOUMISS

Koumiss is not a pharmaceutical preparation proper but a natural transformation of milk by lacto alcoholic fermentation It is of milk what wine is of grapes what cider is of apples that is to say that the transformation of milk into Koumiss is based on the same chemical laws as the transformation of grapes into wine and of apples into cider, by alcoholic fermentation Besides, its Latin denomination, vinum lactis indicates very well its nature and it is while considering its source and its physical properties that one of our eminent physicians has so wittily named it 'Milk Champagne" It leaves a fresh after taste, is more effervescent than champagne, and when poured out becomes covered with an abundant foam, white as snow, overreaching the glass This foam is composed in a great part of the fatty and nutritive principles of the milk raised by the carbonic acid

THE GOOD EFFECTS

Of Koumiss are explained by First, the action of a large quantity of salts, identical to salts of the blood serum, introduced into the organism Second, the action of albumenoid matters on the organic tissues. Third, the eminently digestive action of lactic acid. Fourth, the stimulating action of alcohol, and its influence on the adipose tissues generally Fift, the stimulating action of carbonic acid on the capillaries, and its sedative action on the coat of the stomach Sixth, the state of permanent fermentation, which is to be considered as one of the principal causes of its direct and rapid action All these elements—plastic, heat generating, anti wasting—being all naturally united in it, the powerfully reconstituent action of Koumiss is explained By its use sleep returns, fever disappears, cough diminishes, the appetite increases rapidly and the weight of the body increases

DIRECTIONS FOR USE

The minimum duration of treatment is six weeks In the commencement it will be well to give the patient half a glassful four times a day between meals At the end of two or three days the dose may be increased to as much as a quart bottle, taken in four times—two glassfuls in the morning and two in the afternoon In increasing gradually the quantity, one is to keep the same proportion in the distribution of doses

Koumiss is not only used in Paris, in hospitals and in the ordinary practice of the physicians, but it is also used in London and nearly all the cities of Europe There is also a Koumiss cure in New York City, Washington, Philadelphia and Chicago, and many of the leading physicians of these cities are using it in their practice

Miss Flynn and Her Lover

Miss Mary Flynn was studying medicine and being courted at the same time Mr William Budd was attending to the latter part of the business One evening, while they were sitting together in the front parlor, Mr Budd was thinking how he should manage to propose Miss Flynn was explaining certain physiological facts to him

'Do you know," she said, "that thousands of persons are actually ignorant that they smell with their olfactory peduncle"

'Millions of 'em, replied Mr Budd

And Aunt Mary wouldn't believe me when I told her she couldn't wink without a sphincter muscle'"

'How unreasonable'

'Why a person cannot even kiss without a sphincter'

'Indeed''

"I know it is so'"

'May I try it I can?"

'Oh Mr Budd, it is too bad of you to make light of such a subject"

Mr Budd seized her hand and kissed it She permitted it to remain in his grasp

I didn't notice' he said whether a—a—what do you call it?—a sphincter helped me then or not Let me try again

Then he tried again, and while he held her hand she explained to him about the muscles of that portion of the human body

It is remarkable how much you know about such things" said Mr Budd—"really wonderful Now for example what is the bone at the back of the head called?"

Why the occipital bone of course

And what are the names of the muscles of the [illegible]

The spinalis and infra spinalis among others'

Well now let me show you what I mean When I put my infra spinalis around your waist so is it your [illegible] bone that rests upon my shoulder—[illegible] in this way

My back hair primarily but the [illegible] of course afterward [illegible] Mr Budd [illegible] should come in [illegible] see us

Let him come Who cares?" said Mr Budd boldly I think I [illegible] sphincter again [illegible]

Mr Budd [illegible] Miss Flynn after he had [illegible]

[illegible] Mr Budd [illegible] he [illegible] accent [illegible] don't you I know [illegible] darling

Willie!" whispered Miss Flynn [illegible]

What darling

I can hear your heart beat

It beats only for you my angel

And it sounds to me [illegible] ventricular contraction is not uniform

Small wonder for that when its bursting for joy

You must put yourself under treatment for it I will give you some medicine'

It's your own property during [illegible] what you please with it But somehow the sphincter operation is the one that strikes me most favorably Let me see how it works again

But why proceed The old old story was told again and the [illegible] performance of the muscles of Mr Budd's mouth was enacted again And, about eight years later Mr Budd was wishing that Mary would catch some fatal disease among her patients and marry his thinking [illegible] [illegible] would [illegible] the [illegible]

A Tell-tale Belt

[illegible] who had for some time [illegible] the rank and emoluments of [illegible] The doctor however was [illegible] self Abut an [illegible] of Carter gave a party which was altogether [illegible] brilliant affair of the [illegible] [illegible] was crowded with guests who overflowed into [illegible] In the course of the evening, the widow became somewhat faint [illegible] [illegible] the garden where the fresh air might revive her [illegible] and the doctor found the garden [illegible] pleasant place that he [illegible] with his companion and [illegible]

When the pair returned to the parlor a curious phenomenon attracted universal attention The widow wore a broad belt beautifully ornamented with a painted vine of some uncertain botanical species The doctor wore a black coat and to the amazement of the people one side of his right sleeve was [illegible] with the green stem and leaves and the brilliant white and yellow flowers of the vine that ornamented the widow's belt The conclusion drawn by wicked and heartless people was inevitable There was no possible defense to be made The widow wisely slipped out and went home and the doctor followed her exasperated with rage Of course the widow lost no time in pointing out to him that there was but one way in which he could repair his indiscretion and undo the injury which he had done her and accordingly he was within a week brought to the altar where he expiated his fault with much fortitude and furnished an awful example of the wickedness of painted belts

The Dance of the White Bear-Skin

When a party of eastern girls were in St Paul Minn recently they visited the White Bear lake which is about twelve miles from that city In the lake which has a circumference of thirty two miles is an island of sixty four acres known as White Bear island and famous for its maple sugar made by Indians The Indians gave an entertainment for the visitors—dancing on the tanned skin of a white bear The bearskin dance has a story connected with it Many years ago the chief of the lake refused to give his daughter in marriage to a young warrior because for some reason the warrior had become known as a coward Nevertheless the lovers held stolen meetings on the island a short distance from the village One moonlight night snow being on the ground the lovers climbed into the branches of an old maple tree at the water's edge As they sat in the tree a polar bear the first that ever passed as far south as St Paul appeared under the tree The maiden terrified, slipped and with a wild shriek, fell into the beast's claws The whole village gathered around but no one dared to risk the rescue until the lover who had snatched a knife from a bystander leaped with one bound upon the bear and crimsoned the ground with its blood The brave act gained him the chief's daughter and gave the name to the lake
